One quiet evening, they were playing happily,
and the house felt peaceful and calm.

A few moments later, the sweet playtime turned into a noisy sibling fight that turned the house upside down.

One night before bed, Noah and Lina started arguing about which story their mom should read.

Noah wanted an exciting dragon adventure.

but Lina wanted a soft bunny bedtime story.

The siblings began to argue over which story
Mama should read.

Mama smiled gently and began telling a new story about a brave little bunny and a friendly dragon traveling through the moonlit sky together.

Soon, a giant blocked the moon bridge, but the clever bunny kept him busy with riddles.

While the friendly dragon carried the moon crystal back to the sky. As the story went on....

The two siblings drifted peacefully to sleep side by side, dreaming of moon bridges and friendly dragons.

Every day with Noah and Lina was loud, messy, and unpredictable, yet their little fights and big laughter filled the home with warmth and life.
